- 1. A Rumanian military dirfield is located on the left side of the road connecting Focsani with the village of Precistanu. The site is approximately two kilometers north of the Focsani athletic field and 60 meters from the road.
- 2. This airport is nearly two kilometers long and averages one kilometer in width. In the summer of 1951, the field was cleared of all vegetation and levelled. Its southern edge is bounded by a small cultivated area and a number of wooden barracks of limited size have been erected on the southwest end. There are no hangars or concrete runways.
- 3. On 28 May 1952 ten Rumanian fighter planes were parked near the southern limits of the field and approximately ten other Rumanian fighters were observed in the air at the same time. The Rumanian Air Force insignia, which consists of a red star containing two concentric circles in yellow and blue, was painted on the wings and fuselages of the planes.
